As I took no other remedy, I can give all the credit to the "Cherry Peppermint" which I probably received as a specific for this disease. Yours very truly,

State Association.

The Kentucky Association meets this evening in Western Kentucky. We would urge every teacher true to the cause to attend the annual meeting.

We believe that this state is progressing upon a new era in her educational history; the teacher who respects his profession is coming to be sought by the intelligent public.

Time-servers and demagogues are clinging to their thrones, may they be cast into oblivion. We believe that they are being held on to the scaffold, and we hope to see them hanged.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Latham, of this city, are rid of their troubles.

It is noticeable that their salaries are ridiculously small but this has not disturbed trustees from compelling them to contribute a part of their meager income to keep the school house in repair. He was a man of many great talents of character. He was a brother in his domestic obligations and a man of many great talents of character. He was a husband to his wife, a kind and courteous man, as the handsomest estate he left behind him was his kind and courteous wife.

He was a great lover of children and was never so happy as when in their presence. When attending school he said to him that he could not live if he could not afford to go to school. And without any person to help him, he could not afford to go to school, and made a number of requests, and the next day obtained full release.

A Friend.

OTHERS SEE US.

The following from the New York Evening Post shows how some things are received by outsiders:

"An outrageous species of extortion is practiced on the telegraph. Many persons are compelled to pay a sum of money to receive messages sent to them."
